Loved by SMBs

"It just works. No business today really wants to keep revisiting new solutions every month or year or five years, right? They just want something that works. Something that's predictable and something that you feel like the company is continuing to earn your business and not taking you for granted. So MightyCall does a really good job of retaining their clients that way."

Tanner, CEO of Wakey Communications

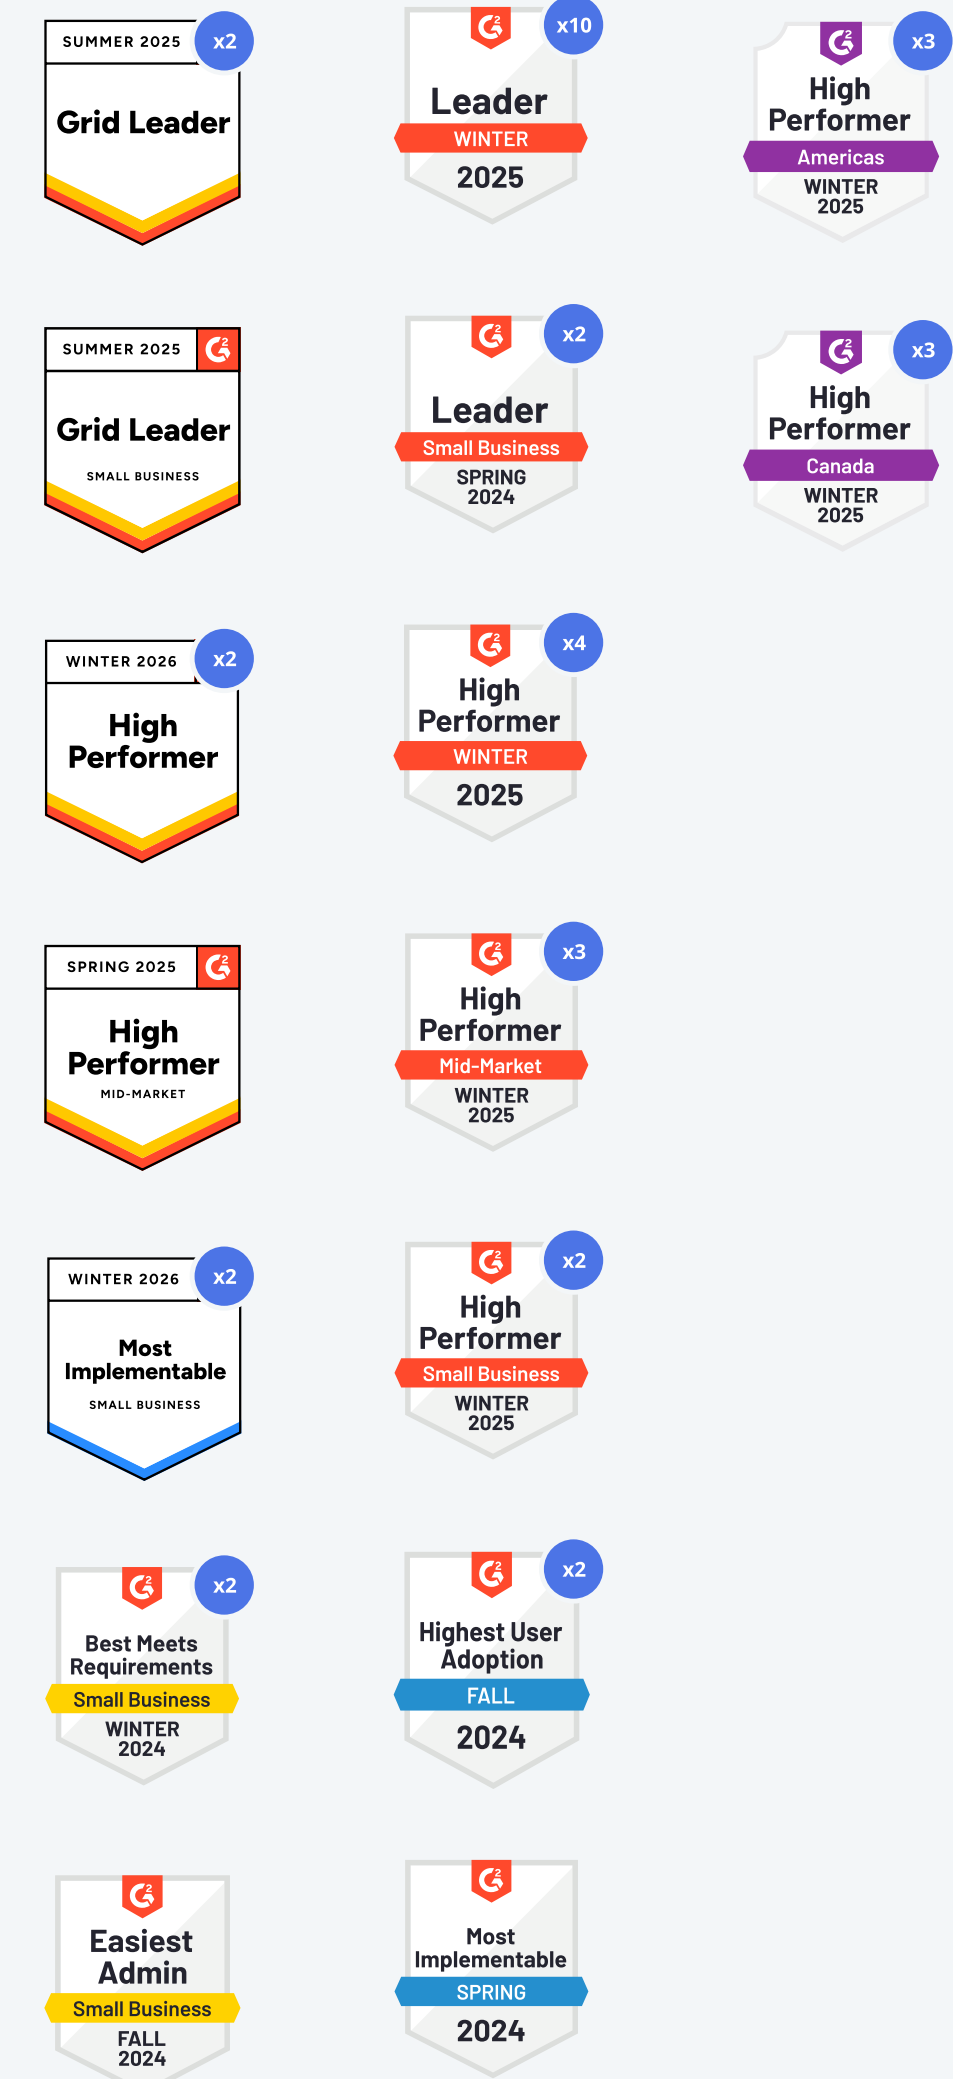

"We do receive a lot of text messages, and we handle a lot of that in this business. One thing we've been able to do is ensure that we meet the compliance standards of what MightyCall and the carriers are looking for. It's a very easy turn-on, and then it works the exact same way as receiving texts or calls on any regular device you pick up from a phone carrier. MightyCall can do that as well."

Chelsea, the Franchise Onboarding Director at RestoPros

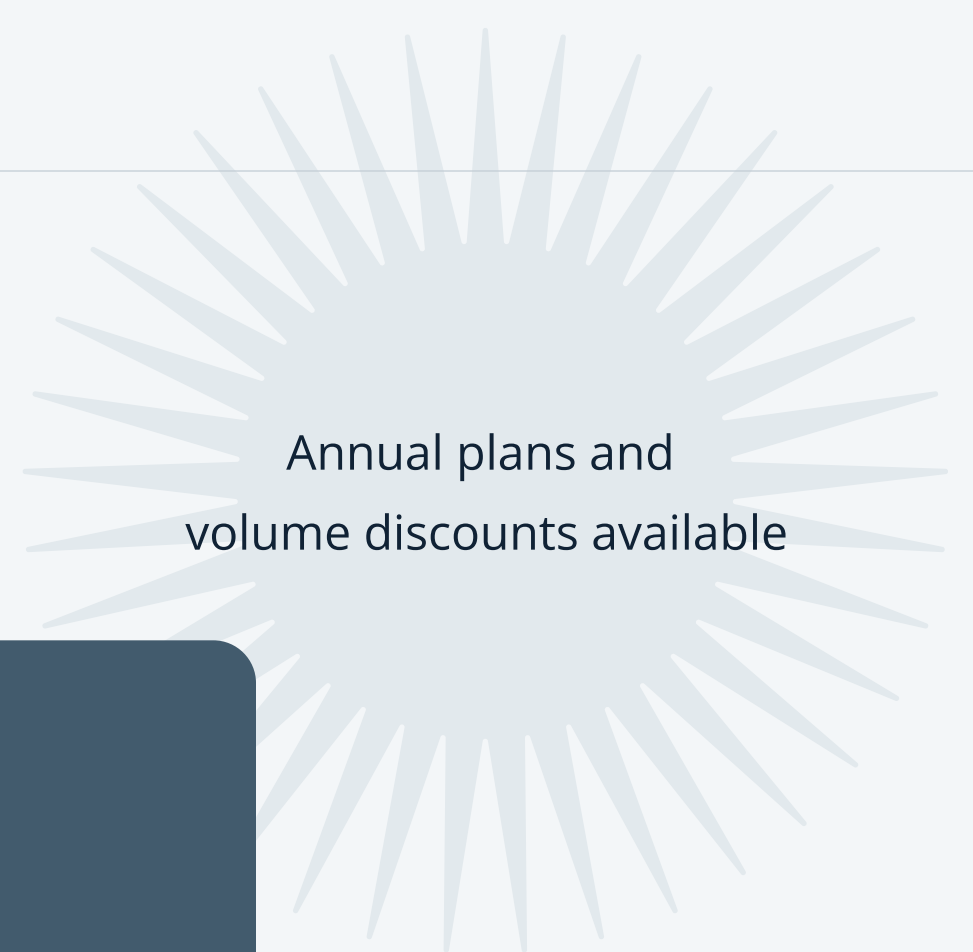

"With me in the management position, I kept track of when clients were called, when appointments were adhered to, and the amount of time that was spent on the phone. So, having it automated is just a manager's dream."

Anthony, Sales Manager Solar X
